Features: 16 original levels, including the new "Chrono Resetti" and "Chemical Rush" levels Easy to play, fun to master 8 alternative control schemes Cooperative multiplayer gameplay, with fully customizable profiles The title screen is fully customizable Soundtrack composed by Bruno Cappelli Add-ons available for free download Platform: WindowsAtheists demand death for Christian pastor Andrew Wilson who meted out flogging High Court-charged with hate speech. The NSPCC is seeking an injunction to stop an upcoming trial. For the past two years, British atheist groups have been attempting to trigger legal action against renowned Christian pastor, Andrew Wilson, for quoting the Bible's Old Testament and New Testament verses, as well as those from the New Testament, that teach that it is God's righteous act to beat people with sticks and rods who commit serious crimes. However, as this process of legal due-process is ongoing, Atheist, Humanist and other "Faithless" organizations are actively suing the High Court to stop the case. Wilson's fight is a testament of how much the State of England is willing to sacrifice when it comes to the rights of a God-fearing man who is simply quoting God's Word on how to deal with criminals. Among a litany of similar accusations, Atheist, Humanist and other "Faithless" organizations claimed that Wilson's explanation of Bible passages, that tells of God ordering punishments such as flogging, is "hate speech." They made claims to demand legal action to have Wilson and his lawyers arrested for "false statements" and "disturbing public order." On top of such serious accusations, Atheists, Humanists and other "Faithless" organizations seek to pull the veil of decency from beneath people's faces while using their
